

Project Title:	Libyan Doctor's Information needs and Information Seeking Behaviour
Student Name:	Ali Salem Khalil Mohamed
Supervisor Name:	Dr Janet Harrison & Dr Mark Hepworth
Start/End Date:	1 st October 2007 – 1 st October 2010
Funding Source:	Libyan Higher Education Ministry
Department:	Information Science

Project Description:

The importance of the study stems from the fact that to achieve the eventual objective of the health centres in Libya, to provide health care services with high quality and timely care to the patients, the health service providers namely the doctor in need of information and knowledge. In addition the first step to develop information system that can meet information needs of health professionals is to identify their needs, in order to be met.

The main aim of this study is to determine the information needs of the Libyan doctors and to investigate their motives for seeking information, to develop and enhance the health information system in Libya.