

CITING AND REFERENCING: APA 7TH EDITION

What is citation?

Citation is the means by which you tell a reader the sources – books, journals, Web pages that you have referred to in your work.

Why it is important to reference the work of other people?

It is important to cite sources accurately for four main reasons; giving credit to other authors, showing that you have read widely, letting others trace the works you have read and avoiding plagiarism.

Examples in this guide

This guide will show you how to cite a wide range of resources, using APA:

Books including e-books	Newspaper articles
Chapters from books	Patents
Journal articles	Standards
Websites	Images

Citing references in your text – also known as “in text citations”

When using APA, cited items are referred to in the text of your work by giving the author’s name and year of publication (this is known as an author-date style).

If you are quoting directly you should also include the page number(s) in your citations:

e.g. Khan (2012, p.4) argued “.....”

e.g. “Consumption has become a collective process” (Kahn, 2012 p.4)

Although not required page numbers for a paraphrase may help the reader locate the relevant passage in a long or complex work.

If you are referring to an argument or ideas which are throughout a work, cite using just the author and date details in brackets:

e.g. In a recent study (Fisher, 2006), it was argued that...

The authors’ last names will appear in alphabetical order at the end of your work where you will give the full publication details of references.

Dealing with multiple authors

There are different rules for the way authors appear in your in-text citation or reference list depending on the number of authors of a given work.

In-text citation: One or two authors

Include all names in every in-text citation.

e.g. A recent report (Goller & Bessant, 2017) discussed ...

In-text citation: Three or more authors

Include the name of the first author plus 'et al.' for every in-text citation.

e.g. Research (Tompkins et al., 2018) suggests that ...

Reference list

Provide surnames and initials for up to and including 20 authors. Use an ampersand (&) between the final two author's names. For 21 or more authors, include the first 19 authors followed by an ellipsis (...) then add the final author's name (do not include an ampersand).

Citing sources in your reference list

For each type of material you cite you will need specific details in your reference list. Remember to stay consistent when referencing each item. All lines after the first line of each reference list entry should be indented half an inch from the left margin. This is called hanging indentation.
